A&DS Schools Programme

Service offer

We collaborate with local authorities to regenerate space for learning, by design.

Format

We collaborate with local authority partners to unlock problems and potential in the learning estate by design. Our process is to encourage early participation and engagement to identify learners and teaching needs; collaboration with decision makers to shape the briefing, design development and assessment stages; and facilitate the sharing of learning through networks, events and online resources informed by the needs of local authorities.

Principles

Our focus is on facilitating 'space to succeed', for all learners. We work to these principles derived from policy drivers, and in collaboration with learners, educators and estates practitioners:

- Create places where people want to be
- Strive for equity of access
- Connect learners, community and services in learning spaces
- Think about design for adaptability, informed by evidence

Benefits

The Schools Programme support is available to education authorities and schools in Scotland at no cost. We offer an external view, peer support, facilitation, learning networks and resources to facilitate change.
